Summary

I have proven over the years to be an excellent communicator and a reliable go-to in many different work sectors. Although my career has been varied and spontaneous with a thread of media and event work throughout. My self-employed/freelance status has allowed me to jump into all sorts of opportunities over the years. Some of this may seem to be ad-hoc and unrelated, but there is a rich seam which runs through all of my work life, The rich seam is the ability to relate to people of all walks of life, ages and backgrounds, including children and young people, a strong work ethic, with the ability to jump into almost any situation and the wherewithal to adapt with confidence and joy and the ability to motivate and energise people. I have learnt over the years that leading a team does not always have to be from the front and although this is my comfort zone, I am becoming increasingly able to lead from the back, motivating, mentoring and encouraging, especially younger people whilst identifying and teasing out their individual skills and confidence throughout the process. I am a nurturer at heart and get a huge amount of joy seeing people grow in their abilities, confidence and faith.
